2008, Year of... Obama

Now it's done, for the modest sum of $750MM, he has been elected. On January 21st he will be crowned and will swear publicly that now not only can he do it, but will he do it. The black Messiah's show -as right-wingers call him- is starting! Most of the world is expecting that after eight Bushyears, nothing worse can come from this side of the Atlantic that can still surprise us. However, President Obama will need to surprise us! The expectations are great and the task seems out of reach. Both at home and abroad. From the industry to from Ukraine to the SEC, nothing will be easy for our man. Of course at home his first task will be to restore employment, then ensure a quick withdrawal from Iraq in a way that will not point him in history as the guy who lost a war. Finally, like his predecessors, he will have to make his peace deal in the Middle East... and fail...

2008, Year of... the Crisis

We have said about everything on the 2008 crisis. Most readers must now feel understandably quite bored with the word itself and be looking for different, if not better, news. So we will wrap it up quickly. Let's just remember that it started with sub-prime loans defaulting, then investment banks that had purchased them announcing huge losses and then dominos starting to fall in predictable order. We are now close to the end (wishful thinking?) and are looking for a nice re-start. When? Optimists say 2009, pessimists 2020. We say early 2010. Until then...

2008, Year of... the Big Oil Swing

From $90 to $145 and back to $40 for one barrel of oil. Truckers, oil countries or their clients have had a hard task at budgeting, or even hedging (most airlines have played it wrong) oil positions. It started with China over accumulating reserves and then finding out that it itself was in trouble and showing the world that its consumption was falling. Output reductions did nothing to stop prices dropping further... until ... your guess is as good as anyone's.

Man of the Year... Newton

$$\vec{F} = \frac{d\vec{p}}{dt} = \frac{d}{dt}(m\vec{v}) = \vec{v} \frac{dm}{dt} + m \frac{d\vec{v}}{dt}$$

Gravitation seems to be the word of the year. It appears that both Einstein and Newton were right... a lot of things that appear to hold in the air without motion, fall. Be it sub-primes or executives' golden parachutes, gold, companies profits, or the Dow at 14,500 (vs. 8,500 today), everything that has gone up inexplicably has had, thanks to Newton, at least an explainable fall. Now, this doesn't mean that markets and prices should not go up and even continue to hold, but that requires the creation of real wealth, and not futures, options, and other derivatives. Real money, real wealth, this almost sounds like an oddity but we may have to reacquaint with the concept as early as possible as real money is what is going to be badly needed. And a lot of it. US automobiles, banks, or airlines everyone is going to ask for it. And governments that seemed to distribute billions here and there are beginning to feel the pain if the difficulty of the German Central Bank to raise a mere $7 Billion last week were needed as a proof. The story doesn't say what Newton did with the apple afterwards, maybe he used it for cooking a tart. Maybe should we learn how to cook/deal with leftovers?

Euro at... 10?

For once we'll make an affirmative stance, the Euro will be 10 in January 2009. Yes, the Euro will be ten year old next month! Ten years already and the question: is it a success? Probably yes, since cabs in London, New York and Tokyo accept it. Now at the end of 2008, the Euro is regaining some ground as US

Dollar interest rate is zero and the greenback is no longer an attractive alternative. So the Euro is celebrating 10 years in fanfare and all dollar earners are crying. Not to mention oil producers watching the fall of oil compounded with its dollar value. There seems to be an attraction to the Euro since it has become the legal currency in 19 countries. Switzerland has a special agreement with and its currency is now technically linked to the Euro as well. The same applies to Estonia, Denmark and Latvia. So a success? Definitely if its attractiveness is the criteria. It has become the 2nd reserve currency, ahead of the Yen, but still far behind the Dollar.

Walnut Millésime

Walnut Millésime (the "Fund") is a specialized Fund that deals exclusively on the Premiers Grands Crus Classés market through privileged access to the Bordeaux specialized merchants. The return of the Fund basket* has been consistent and has yielded in excess of +25% per annum.

The rising price of Premiers Grands Crus Classés is the result of high and rising demand versus limited supply.

WF Assets Management's winning investment strategy associated to the unique potential returns of the underlying allows for outstanding profits perspectives with a zero correlation to traditional financial markets.

JOKER OF THE MONTH

Dubai Municipality has started a new road sign system, instead of directions, it now says "North" or "South". Now we want to meet, in person, the first one who will have a taxi driver taking him "North" and reach his destination... or any destination for that matters.

North, South, is a system that works in the USA, but not in Dubai. There (in the USA) it simply identifies the enemy: East is Bagdad, North is Canada, and South, well, South is all those countries...

In Dubai, we need clearer indications such as "after the Mosque" or "straight and after go right". Simple.

2009, Year of... the Right Millésime?

As you may have read on the previous page, Walnut Finance is launching Walnut Millésime, the first and only Fund to focus exclusively on Bordeaux 1st Grands Crus Classés. A very secretive world were classifications are discussed amongst "initiés" only and dominated, rather surprisingly, by Robert M. Parker Jr., an American whose words can make or destroy a wine! Because, of the troubled times we live in,

Walnut Finance is enthusiastically moving ahead, because an investment with no correlation to the financial markets looks well-timed. Demand for 1st Grands Crus Classés is constantly rising and is about 3 million bottles, while the production (see illustration below) is limited (by a 1855 Napoleon II decree) to 600,000 bottles. A winning combination! The price of these wines has therefore constantly risen over the past years.

6,300,000,000 bottles
