Eyjafjallajokull (whatabigmess!)

"Send Cash! Not Ash!" (British bankers)

With an ongoing strike at British Airways and the quarterly strike at SNCF the Icelanders could not have chosen a better time to launch their strike against Europe: Eyjafjallajokull! Good timing? Maybe not. The natural link for American business in Russia and vice-versa, Iceland was a staunch anti-EU until it was broken by greed and bad policies during the crisis. Iceland is now hinting at a speedy adhesion to EU in 2011.

Goldman Sucks (whatabunchof...)

"One shitty deal" (Goldman on its own product)

During the 1929 crisis, Goldman Sachs reputation was hurt for many years as the Ponzi scheme they had set up abruptly came to an end, sending thousands of their clients into bankruptcy (and nearly getting there themselves). Today, they launched Abacus, and sold it to two large investors, while, selling a bet against Abacus to Paulson & Co. which earned it $1 Billion. Same amount lost by the two investors. Ethical?

This month's big story obviously was the Icelandic cloud of ashes. The accidental death of the Polish president and Goldman Sachs obvious unethical and unprofessional behavior made also for small and big talk. Greece, Portugal and now, Spain downgraded by S&P, provoking roller-coaster markets worldwide. Germany dreams of an Europe made of... Germans only.

Polish President dead, EU increases from 26 to 27 Members

Lech Kaczynski, the former President of Poland died in an air crash. A big loss for his country and its citizens, maybe not so much for the European Union. Mr. Kaczynski was a living obstacle to any progress, often alone versus the other 26 countries blocking decision after decision. Anti-Europe, opposed to abortion, against homosexuals, Mr. Kaczynski could be categorized as populist, Christian and ultra-conservative. In short, the George Bush of Europe. Not the kind of partner most European leaders were looking for. On the positive side, he was said to be incorruptible. There have been rumors about the accident not being one, the Russians having not yet recognized the Katyn massacre he was going to commemorate. On the other hand, his plane, a 20-year old Tupolev 154 was not equipped to land in fog, neither was the airport. The President was known to have fired one of his former pilots for having refused to land in similar conditions. Wrong decision.

Wealthy Millionaires? Not as Before

The number of High Net Worth Individuals (HNWIs) has declined by 24% in 2009 according to the 13th Merrill Lynch - Capgemini Report. In the Middle East, their number was only down by 6% but assets dropped by 16%. As assets, HNWIs hold about 30% in real estate, 25% in shares, 17% in cash and 13% in bonds.

Gold amounts to between 0% and 0.5% of their wealth. Let's note that Asia has overtaken North America as the region with the most High Net Worth Individuals. UAE millionaires are down 2% to 21,000, with only 17% of them planning to purchase properties in the Middle East. Caution, Caution.

Crisis? What Crisis?

British Airways & Iberia

Have decided to merge their operations while keeping both brands. Long life to happy British drinkers, Spanish beach are yours!

Armani Hotel, Dubai

The Burj Khalifa Armani Hotel opened. With suites selling up to $10,000 per night it is the new spot in town. Let's see how the current crisis will affect operations of this new Dubai icon.

The World according to WalnutFinance

Europe

Kyrgyzstan Coup in Kyrgyzstan. The (now former) president and most of his government fled the country and are in hiding.

Poland Polish President Lech Kaczynski and members of his government died when their plane crashed near Smolensk in Russia. The President's wife as well as the Head of the Central Bank and ministers were also among casualties.

UK The row between England and Iceland goes on. After the Northern island has been accused of having "stolen"

Iceland Millions of pounds from UK savers, Iceland is now blocking UK air traffic with ashes from one of its volcanoes.

Belgium King Albert II accepted -one more time- His Prime Minister's resignation from office. Row between Dutch and French speakers was the usual sparking for the crisis.

Greece The end is not far: either Greece will be ousted from the Euro zone (as some German wish), or it will get loans from EU and will probably negotiate its mega debt. As in Argentina or Brazil in the good old days. As of April 26th, Greece became the world's riskier country, financially speaking (ahead of North Korea or Sudan).

Asia

Thailand The country is still marred with increasing violence, thousands wounded, tens dead, the red, the yellow, the pink now. How many more colors to come? There has been 18 coups in Thailand over the past 77 years.

America

USA Huge leak in the Gulf of Mexico after the collapse of a BP-operated oil rig. Louisiana on alert.

USA Hewlett-Packard buys iconic Palm for $1.2 Billion.

The Middle East

Iran The row relating to three Islands taken over manu militari 20 years ago by the Iranians from the United Arab UAE Emirates is resurfacing.

WalnutFinance is also caring for Men...

Solar Impulse

The Solar Impulse website quotes the author of "Around the World in 80 days", Jules Verne, who said "All that is impossible remains to be achieved". A sure inspiration for explorer Bertrand Picard who has decided to prove that is possible to fly around the world using only solar power. The plane he designed to that end has the wingspan of a Boeing 747, with the weight of a small car. Not cheap, the project budget is Euro 70 Million. After an initial and successful 90- minute flight test, the next step will be to test Solar Impulse's ability to fly at night which, not a small affair for a solar powered plane which carries 12,000 solar cells.

Yacht A

Andrey Melnichenko is a wealthy and successful Russian industrialist and banker. Having worked very hard. Maybe not a soccer fan, he decided not to buy an English football club and rather to build the A, one of the world's largest yachts. And if not the largest, certainly the most extravagant. Designed by Philippe Stark, the A is a 390-foot ship that has cost only $300,000,000. Filling the tank costs $1 Million. The 23,600 sqft living quarters are a show of luxury, starting with the 2,583 sqft revolving master bedroom located on top of the ship. The master suite is wrapped in a 44-millimeter bomb-proof glass. The ship also bears 44 security cameras equipped with motion detection and night-vision infrared system.

($100,000 invested on January 1, 2009 equally split over five securities)

We sold Yahoo! (YHOO) with a 30% profit, and invested the proceeds into Natus Medical (BABY), a company specialized in neurodiagnostics for babies which gave us a healthy profit for the month. Citigroup (C) and AIG (AIG) suffered heavily by month-end in the wake of the Goldman Sachs affair. Hectic month.
